A. The United States collier Nero, when taking soundings near Guam, in the Philippines, on November 14, 1899, recorded a depth of 31,614 feet in the Pacific ocean. This is the greatest ocean depth on record. The greatest depth in the Atlantic ocean is said to be 27,366 feet, in the Indian ocean 18,582 feet, in the Southern ocean 25,200 feet and in the Arctic ocean 9,000 feet.

Q. (1) Is New York city the largest city in the world? (2) Which is the largest battleship in the United States navy and where was it built? J. C. R.

A. (1) It is the largest city under a central municipal government. A large part of the population of Greater London, comprising some of the suburbs, is governed by the British Home Office and not by the London municipal government. (2) The Utah, displacement 21,825 tons, horsepower 28,000, speed 21 knots. Her keel was laid in 1909. She carries ten 12-inch and sixteen 5-inch guns in her main battery.

Q. Please give the name of any magazine for which Alfred Henry Lewis writes regularly and tell something about him. S. B.

A. We do not know what publication Mr. Lewis is connected with at present. Up to last year he was editor of "The Verdict." Alfred Henry Lewis was a newspaper man, and wrote under the name of "Dan Quin" when he started to write. He was Washington correspondent of the Chicago Times and later took charge of the Washington bureau of the New York Journal. He gave up active newspaper work when he became noted as a writer of short stories and books.

Q. Who was the author of the following lines of poetry: "On Lyndar, when the sun was low, All bloodless lay the untrodden snow?" V. F.

A. Thomas Campbell (1777-1844) in his poem "Hohenlinden," first stanza. "On Lyndar, when the sun was low, All bloodless lay the untrodden snow; And dark as winter was the flow Of Isar, rolling rapidly."

Q. Please explain the difference between the commission form of government and the usual form. Reader.

A. It provides, generally, for the election of a specified number of commissioners selected at large from the city. These commissioners in turn elect one of their number mayor and divide among themselves the administration of the other city departments, but all of them are responsible to the mayor. The responsibility for the city's affairs is concentrated upon these commissioners, and their number, therefore, is usually kept as small as possible. Many communities elect the commissioners without reference to party affiliations, separate ballots being used at the primaries.

Q. (1) Is the Panama Canal to be free to all nations? (2) Is the building of the canal being done by contract? J. A. A.

A. (1) It is not likely. Congress will dispose of the matter of tolls before long, probably, as foreign ship owners are requesting prompt action. On the tolls exacted will depend in a large measure the amount of traffic which the canal will be called upon to handle, and the building of new ships for canal service both in this country and abroad will be governed, consequently, by the action of Congress. (2) The Panama Canal Commission, made up principally of army and navy officers, is constructing the canal with the money which the government raised by the sale of the Panama Canal bonds.

Q. (1) How long does it take to send a message from New York to London by cable and what does it cost? (2) How long does it take the fastest ships to cross the Atlantic and what does a first-class passage cost? (3) How many miles of railroads in this country are operated by electricity and how many by steam? M. C. T.

A. (1) A few minutes only if the lines are clear. The only cause of delay is the necessity for relaying messages from telegraph to cable lines each side of the water. The regular rate is twenty-five cents a word, but cable letters, subject to delay, are much cheaper. (2) About five days. The Mauretania and Lusitania are called four-day boats, their record being four and a half days. First cabin fares run from $75 up to several hundred, depending on the ship and the location of the quarters. (3) The electric roads aggregate 41,000 miles, steam roads 242,860.

Q. Where is the native home of the groundhog, if there is such an animal, and why is he looked upon as a weather prophet? J. T. C.

A. He lives in the eastern part of the United States, south of the St. Lawrence river. The groundhog, or woodchuck, as he is called in some localities, is first cousin to the squirrel. It is practically a big ground squirrel about fourteen inches long and with a four or five-inch tail. Like the gopher, the woodchuck lives on green herbage, making his house on a hillside by burrowing twelve or fifteen feet down. As a rule he stays home all day and stays out late at night, breakfasting about sun-up. Along in the autumn the groundhog begins to take on flesh and when cold weather comes he gets into his hole and goes to sleep for the winter. When he wakes up along toward spring, he sticks his nose out of doors to cast an eye on the weather. The date of this ceremony is officially February 2, and if they all observe the day, there must be a great popping out of heads on the hillsides of the groundhog country that morning. If he sees his shadow, he goes back for six more weeks.

Q. A Jersey Woman's Thoughts on Economy.

To make a dollar do a good dollar's worth of work, is what every housekeeper needs to accomplish in these days of high prices.

It is so easy to waste, in either large or small ways, that many a dollar sneaks out of sight with only half its work done. People do not stumble over mountains, but over molehills, and there is more money frittered away in small sums than in large extravaganzas.

To paraphrase Solomon, we might say: As a jewel of gold in a pawnbroker's window, so is a fair woman which is without economy. For there are financial necessities behind and before them both. But an economical frame of mind is by no means a mean one. Do not set out to buy a gown to be worn for dress or hard service requiring good material, and end with a poor quality—because it was so cheap. That is not economy. The making costs as much, the trimming probably more, and for you think in that way you can bring the gown up to the required standard. But it does not, and you get neither the required wear nor looks from it, and when it ends its short and shabby career you are glad of it and have learned a lesson, it is to be hoped, for time.

On the other hand, do not, by any means, eschew all cheap materials. There are many beautiful ones. Lovely little gowns for summer or evenings at home can be made of the silky, self-dotted mulls at from fifteen to twenty-five cents a yard. They come in black, white, pink, blue and other colors and can be worn over lawn slips as well as those of silk. Domestic cotton crepes at fifteen cents a yard are now made almost as thin and fine as the imported at seventy-five. There is no more useful morning frock than a white one of these, for it is easily laundered, shaken out and dried and requires no ironing.

Sometimes the best management is not a question of buying at the lowest price, but of not buying at all. A clever woman can do the former, but it takes a genius to make a left-over answer for new. Why, I have heard of a woman, absolutely unable to buy a mourning hat, who made a passable looking one out of the silk of an old umbrella. That was genius.

In housefurnishing there is no end to the possibilities for economy. The mistress of a pretty house on Orange mountain made effective dining-room curtains, which people have raved over, out of five-cent unbleached muslin, on which she stenciled a design of red apples and green leaves. Many a beautiful sofa pillow cover in its first estate, rustled as a breadth of silk skirt. And I have seen bureau scarfs and sideboard covers made of the unworn outer sides of homespun linen sheets made over a century ago.

One of the worst domestic leaks leads from the refrigerator. The economical housewife blesses the inventor of luncheons, for odds and ends of left-overs can then be used to good advantage. Two or three kinds of meat can be minced together, mixed with a cupful of milk, thickened with a tablespoonful of each of flour and butter, seasoned with a teaspoonful of grated nutmeg, a tablespoonful of chopped onion and parsley and salt and pepper to taste. When this mixture is cold, form it into egg-shaped croquettes, dip in egg and breadcrumbs and fry in boiling lard. Serve with tomato sauce.

Don't throw away half a cupful of milk left over from yesterday—like it out with hot water, add a heaping teaspoonful of cocoa and give it added nourishment to the delicate one of the family between meals.

Transform small quantities of different vegetables with French dressing into a Swedish salad. Make a good soup of a steakbone, an onion, a carrot, a turnip, some celery tops and a tablespoonful of rice. In a word, do not waste anything and you will find your dollars doing their duty in that state of life into which it has pleased God to call you.

Almost A Miracle.

One of the most startling changes ever seen in any man, according to W. B. Holsclaw, Clarendon, Tex., was effected years ago in his brother. "He had such a dreadful cough," he writes, "that all our family thought he was going into consumption, but he began to use Dr. King's New Discovery, and was completely cured by ten bottles. Now he is sound and well and weighs 218 pounds. For many years our family has used this wonderful remedy for Coughs and Colds with excellent results." It's quick, safe, reliable and guaranteed. Price 50 cents and $1.00. Trial bottle free at all druggists.—Adv.

Boy Scout News.

All scouts are invited to participate in the second annual review of the Boy Scouts of Northern New Jersey at Military Park, Broad street and Park place, Newark, this afternoon.

Governor Wilson, Mayor Haussling, James E. West, chief scout executive; Lorillard Spencer, New York Scout Commissioner, and others are expected to be present and speak. Music by boys' brass band and Scout Bugle Corps. Over 600 Boy Scouts, in uniform, are expected to be present. All local troops will meet at Bloomfield Centre about 1 o'clock and go by trolley to Broad and Fulton streets, Newark, the formation place. The line of march will be formed there and the parade will go south on Broad street to the apex of Military Park, where they will be reviewed by the Newark Scout Council and guests of honor. Patriotic exercises will be held around the great steel flagpole, the tallest in New Jersey, and after the colors have been raised with scout ceremony, the boys will be addressed briefly by the mayor. The line of march will again form and go north on Park place to the large green at Military Park. Here a model scout camp will be erected and each troop participating will be assigned a place in the encampment.

A two hours' programme of the worth of the Boy Scouts will then be delegated, each troop in turn exhibiting a different phase of scout activity.

Good deeds recorded during the past week by members of Troop 5 follow: King Snake patrol 47, Fox patrol 34, Eagle patrol 46, Hospital squad 38.

The Boy Scouts of America must not carry firearms, and any boy in a scout uniform who carries a revolver or a rifle is disobeying the instructions of the leaders of that organization. James E. West, Chief Scout Executive of the Boy Scouts of America, said to-day that he has been authorized by the executive board of his organization to take such steps as may be necessary to make it clear to the public that the real scout movement is not military and is distinctly opposed to having the boys carry firearms.

The Boy Scouts in Seattle, Washington, are active members of the Garden City Club. They are cleaning up and cultivating vacant lots in the city. They are turning the lots into flower gardens and vegetable plots, and thereby earning money with which to buy suits and badges and to pay for their camping equipment. The boys go about the city hunting for vacant lots, and when they find one they ask permission of the owner to clean it up and cultivate it.

The visit of Lieutenant-General Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell has been of great help in arousing still greater interest in the Boy Scouts movement.

The Boy Scouts of the world soon will be sending postal cards to one another. Lieutenant-General Sir Robert S. S. Baden-Powell and James E. West, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, have devised several postal cards with greetings which the Boy Scouts of America can use in sending greetings to their brother scouts in 20 or 25 other countries throughout the world.

Boy Scouts of America in Washington are helping the anti-dirt campaign in that city. They are giving time every day to the work of cleaning up vacant lots and yards and removing articles that are hurtful to the health of the city.

Eden Musee.

Captain Smith, late commander of the ill-fated Titanic, is the latest figure shown in the Eden Musee collection. Standing on the steps of the "Rulers of the World" group in the Central Hall, the hero of the sea is much commented on by the visitors to this famous resort. Among the extra attractions the coming week exceptionally interesting subjects are shown on the Cinematograph de Luxe in the Winter Garden. These exhibitions are given every hour, afternoon and evening. Daily concerts are rendered by the Contorno Ladies' Sextette, who offer splendid musical programs, both classical and popular. The tableau entitled "Under the Sea" in the Crypt, draws much attention at this time. The group "World's Heroes" on land and sea, located in the Central Hall, was also crowded with visitors during the past week. Additions have been made to the stereoscopic gallery, which is freely patronized by the out-of-town visitors at this season of the year.

The Chinese Way.

In view of the number of men whose names, like that of Aboe Ben Adhm, "led all the rest," who went to their graves in the Atlantic on that awful night when the Titanic struck the iceberg "as big as a mountain," it is interesting to know that the Chinese in their maritime regulations insist upon saving the men first, the children next and the women last, on the theory that the men are more useful to the State than the women, "for what would women do without their husbands?"

1912 Directory.

Price, Lee & Co., the well-known directory publishers, have issued the 1912 edition of the Montclair, Bloomfield, Caldwell, Essex Fells, Verona, Glen Ridge and Cedar Grove directory. The book is issued in the usual handy form that has been followed by the publishers for years past and which makes it a ready and convenient reference book in looking up names and addresses. The suburban directory covers one of the most important sections of this county from a business standpoint, and is an invaluable aid to every storekeeper and those in other lines of business.

An indication of the growth of this town is evidenced by the large increase in the number of names in the Bloomfield division of the directory. Copies of the directory are on sale by the publishers at their office, 828 Broad street, Newark.
